

Project COPE: Caring Outreach Project for Exonerees

RESEARCH CONDUCTED BY AND FOR EXONERATED INDIVIDUALS

TOURO UNIVERSITY
CALIFORNIA

California exonerees are invited to participate in this brief survey to understand coping mechanisms and needs among people who were wrongfully incarcerated. In partnership with Exonerated Nation, our research team includes exonerees, Gloria Killian and Zavion Johnson and faculty from the Touro University California Public Health Program.

Our organizations are committed to the belief that exonerees have every right to pursue their dreams, feel safe, reunite with their families, and heal. We are committed to highlighting the public health impacts of incarceration and providing evidence to support policy recommendations that establish a framework to safeguard access to mental health services and support for exonerees.
